The Ultimate Military Discount Travel Guide

The Ultimate Military Discount Travel Guide

Military members can save money on hotels, flights, car rentals & more!

Millions of men, women, and their families have made daily sacrifices to ensure the freedoms we enjoy in the United States. There's no denying that the members of our armed forces have given a lot to keep our country safe and protected. Currently, there are about 1.3 million active duty military members with an additional 865,000 in reserve, according to the International Institute for Strategic Studies. Furthermore, as of 2015, the United States Census Bureau reported there were another 18.8 million military veterans.

While there are many opportunities to honor these heroes, such as Armed Forces Day, Memorial Day, Veterans Day, and a simple "Thank you for your service," some companies have decided to take their gratitude to another level by providing military members and their families the opportunity to save some money, as well.

Travel expenses – whether due to moving for duty or taking a vacation to spend time with your family – can be a huge strain for military members. In honor of those who are serving or have served our country, many companies are proud to offer special savings for active military, U.S. National Guard, reservists, and veterans as a way to say, "thank you" and to show their appreciation.

What to know about military discounts

When it comes to taking advantage of a military discount, one of the biggest things you need to know is that you should simply ask! Many companies may not advertise these special offers online but are pleased to offer one when you ask and present identification.

Here are a few things to keep in mind when planning a move or trip and looking for military specific discounts or deals:

- Don't be afraid to ask! As mentioned above, just because you don't see a military specific discount or offer listed, don't assume that one doesn't exist. Ask, and you just might receive.
- Double check who qualifies. Generally, any military specific discount is open to all active duty military members, which typically includes National Guard and Reservist members as well. However, they might not include veterans. Be sure to ask and make sure in advance.

- Verify how to receive the discount. Some companies let you show ID when you show up while others want you to provide proof of service at the time of booking. Make sure to check the details to ensure you receive the discount.
- Make sure you have ID. Nine times out of 10, you'll need to show ID and/or proof of military service in order to receive the specific offer. Not sure which ID to bring? Check out our checklist at right.
- Discounts may vary. Discounts may vary for a number of reasons. For instance, some hotels offer a standard percentage off, while others offer a special rate based on supply and demand. Additionally, some franchises leave special offers to the owner's discretion.
- Shop around – just in case! Just because you qualify for a military specific discount, doesn't mean it's the best offer at the moment. Shop around to see if there's another special – such as an end of summer deal – that might be worth more.

What do I need?

- Active Duty ID card
- Department of Defense Common Access card
- Guard/Reserve Military ID card
- Retiree Military ID card
- Military Dependent ID card
- Veteran ID card

Other forms of ID that may be acceptable

Airlines, flights & baggage

One of the largest expenses when it comes to moving or traveling is the cost of getting there. Depending on where you're going, you may need to fly, which can range from a couple of hundred dollars each to a thousand dollars or more per person. On top of that, baggage costs and other fees can drive the price up. All of the airlines on our list offer special baggage rates (such as three free bags), and some even offer discounts on flights.

KEEP IN MIND: In some cases, you'll need to call in to the specific airline to make your reservation and receive the discount.

United Airlines offers military members and their families a 5% discount on airfare. In early 2017, the average cost of a United ticket was $234 (source) meaning a family of four could save $93.60 on roundtrip flights PLUS another $420 saved in baggage fees!

Hotels & lodging

Aside from the actual cost of getting to your destination, lodging is one of the biggest expenses when it comes to moving and/or vacationing. During vacations, you'll obviously want a safe, comfortable, and affordable place to rest your head after a busy day. In the case of a move, you may need to stay at an extended stay lodge until you can establish your new residence. Check out the hotel list to find a variety of options at varying prices points and discounts.

KEEP IN MIND: Many of the hotel and lodging discounts are calculated following the per diem rate in the Government & Military Per Diem Rate Qualification Guidelines.

The average price of a hotel room in Las Vegas in 2016 was $138 per night (source) meaning with a 10-20% discount you could save anywhere from $69 to $138 for a five-night stay.

Rental cars & trucks

If you're flying instead of driving, you'll need some wheels to get around once you land. When it comes to renting a car or truck, your military ID can get you discounted rates, fee waivers, and more. Your specific offer may depend on the nature of your trip – official business and/or tour-of-duty orders, or leisure travel.

KEEP IN MIND: If you're under 25 years old, you may still be able to rent a car, but might have to pay a higher rate.

Economy and compact cars can range from $45 to $65 per day (source). With a 25% discount, you can save a total of $56.25 to $81.25 during a five-day trip.

These are some of the rental car companies offering special discounts to military members, their families, and veterans:

Tips for planning your travel

As you can see, there are a lot of options when it comes to travel and military discounts. It's easy to get overwhelmed while planning your trip. With a little research, patience, and some planning, you can make your next trip memorable and affordable!

Here are some tips for planning your travel:

- Create a budget. Before you start planning, determine what your budget is and how much you're willing to spend. Knowing what you're working with helps you better prepare and decrease temptation – just because tickets to something is discounted doesn't mean it's an event your family will enjoy.
 - PRO TIP: You can use the USAA Rewards™ American Express® Card or a travel rewards credit card to earn points ahead of your trip and save even more money by redeeming them!
- Dig into the details. A company may offer a deep discount for the military member and then a much smaller discount for all dependents. Make sure you know this in advance by digging into all the details and fine print so you aren't blindsided.
- Compare your options. As mentioned above, you may need to shop around to ensure you're getting the best deal possible, whether it's a military discount or not. Don't be afraid to ask if there's another option that's better or if a company will price match.
 - PRO TIP: Websites like Expedia, Kayak, Priceline, and more can help you compare costs across hundreds of travel sites.

- Take care of business before leaving. It's a good idea to leave a copy of your itinerary and lodging details with a loved one, let your credit card companies know you're traveling, plan for someone to house sit or pet sit, and buy travel insurance.
- Consider traveling during the "off-season." Many companies won't offer discounts during the holidays because those are opportunities for high markup; however, each destination has an "on" and "off" season. If you travel during the "off-season," you'll get a discount on top of already low rates.
 - PRO TIP: When planning your trip, keep an eye out for these three times when travel discounts aren't quite as advantageous as they appear.

It may not seem fun to check on details and create an itinerary, but by putting in a little legwork upfront before you travel, you can sit back and relax during your trip knowing that everything is taken care of and you saved some money!

RESOURCES

Aside from the companies listed in this guide, there are a number of resources you can consult when planning military travel for duty or leisure:

- The American Legion – As the nation’s largest wartime veterans service organization, The American Legion provides members information and discounts for auto rental, finances, insurance, medical, moving and relocation, retail, travel, lodging, and more.
- Blue Star Families – Through a variety of partnerships, the organization provides free resources, services, education and more to military families regarding family life, careers, moves, deployments, and communities.
- Information, Tickets, and Travel (ITT) Offices – Your local military ITT office can alert you to discounts for hotels, car rentals, sporting events, movie tickets, theme parks, vacation packages, and more.

- Morale, Welfare, and Recreation (MWR) Services – Each branch of the U.S. Armed Forces has an MWR program that provides free or discounted recreation activities and tickets to military members and their families.
- National Military Family Association – This private, nonprofit association carries out a number of programs to educate the public, including members of Congress, about the rights and benefits of military families.
- U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs – This department works to serve and honor America’s veterans through a variety of resources, patient care, and federal benefits for veterans and their families.
- USAA – Military members and their families can become USAA members to receive competitive rates on banking, credit cards, insurance, and investment services.
- Veterans of Foreign Wars \(VFW\) – As a member of the VFW, you’ll have access to travel and recreation discounts as well as insurance programs, financial services, retail discounts, medical services, and more.
